where do plants get the nutrition needed to grow and sustain health?

Plants need the right combination of nutrients to grow, reproduce and thrive. The key to absorbing these nutrients is:

- 🍁 Soil that is rich in organic material to hold nutrients in place
- 🍁 Soil must be sufficiently moist, not too wet, not too dry
- 🍁 Soil PH must be within a certain range to allow for nutrient release from soil particles - not too high, not too low
- 🍁 Soil temperature matters - not too hot, not too cold
- 🍁 Good soil physical factors like tilth, structure and porosity
- 🍁 Level of essential elements must be available

liebig's law of the minimum:

If one nutrient doesn't reach the minimum required by a plant it doesn't matter the amount of the other nutrients.

what are the essential elements?

Plants, no matter where they grow, need sixteen essential elements in order to sprout, seed, grow, bud, flower and fruit. Other non-essential trace minerals are utilized by either the plant or soil microbes that help the plant.

living and growing in harmony
